Embodying the Archetypes of Creativity

Maya Ward explores the intersections between place, body, brain and the experience of archetypes. Her book "The Comfort of Water" was one of six books to represent Victoria; she has worked as an urban designer, permaculture teacher, environmental educator, public art designer, musician, performer, environmental educator, festival director and writer. <http://mayaward.com.au/>

Orpheus in the Underworld

Simon Oates is a critically acclaimed storyteller, musician, songwriter and teacher. 'Orpheus in the Underworld' is an exploration of several key obsessions: male initiation, the deeper meaning of romantic love, the decent into the unconscious, and a persistent fantasy of being a rock-star. Part dream, part Martin Prechtel's description of traditional Guatemalan culture, It is performance of a universal myth. <http://simonoats.com/>

On Jung and Steiner

John Allison has worked for many years as a Steiner teacher and teacher-trainer. Skilled in pastoral care, he teaches reflective practices based in observation, mindfulness and presence leading to creative initiative. John is a gifted orator and will explore the overlap between the two great thinkers and then take delegates into a way to experientially understand the respective core messages. www.johnallison.com.au

The Structure of the psyche in relationship

Nic Morrey has over 15 yrs experience in helping couples heal. With images from the Red Book, Nic will highlight the importance of creativity, archetypes and images to facilitate the healing process. Using the 4 quadrants and the 4 Jungian functions, the anatomy of the Psyche will be discussed from the perspective of being in relationship. Nic will unravel the purpose of romantic love, how romantic love goes wrong, effective couple's dialogue and the science of attraction. www.integralpsychology.org/

Social Dreaming
